Introduction to the pack

The aim of this safeguarding INSET pack is to help you provide an informative, relevant and engaging session. It covers:

- What safeguarding means and why it is important
- Key updates to statutory safeguarding guidance for 2026
- The four main types of abuse and signs to look out for
- A variety of specific safeguarding issues
- Responding to and sharing concerns
- Creating and maintaining an effective safeguarding culture
- Useful tools and resources for continued professional development

We recommend customising the presentation and documents to best suit your school's needs. For example, you may want to add specific details regarding your own policies and procedures, or 'pick and choose' from the topics included in the safeguarding issues section of the presentation.

How to use

- Presentation

Before the session, take some time to personalise the presentation where necessary.

Google Slides users will need to make a copy of the presentation to enable editing - instructions can be found on slide 1.

Throughout the presentation, you will find numerous opportunities to engage your team. We've included a variety of discussion points, videos, scenarios, and quizzes to help you effectively test and reinforce their safeguarding knowledge.

- Facilitator notes

The facilitator notes are designed to help you convey key information to staff when presenting. We recommend printing a copy of this document beforehand or keeping it open in presenter view. You can also view the notes directly within the slides during editing mode.

- Summary sheets

We've prepared a summary sheet for each section of the presentation, highlighting the key topics. Distribute these during your session or send them afterward as a quick reference guide, complete with links to additional resources.

- KCSIE quiz

To support you in your responsibility to ensure all staff understand KCSIE guidance, our pack includes a ready-to-use quiz for your team to complete. The responses will help you to assess safeguarding knowledge, evidence compliance, and identify any areas for further development.

- Staff self audit

In the final thoughts section, you'll find a staff self audit. We encourage you to distribute this at the end of the presentation so your team can reflect on their confidence in key areas of safeguarding. The results will help you assess where individuals might need additional support.
